Empowering the next generation of scientists.

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

Set in the heart of the Midwest — the gateway between coastal regions of the United States — the inaugural Gateway Ion Channel Symposium will showcase the latest breakthroughs in ion channel research across fields and serve as a catalyst for collaboration between scientists at all career stages.

The program features talks from a diverse group of speakers, interactive presentations from early career faculty and trainees, a poster session, and ample time for discussion and networking.

The Gateway Ion Channel Symposium is more than just a conference. Participation will provide a pivotal step in career development along with valuable opportunities to contribute to and learn from a vibrant community of scientists who are advancing the frontiers of the ion channel field. We invite you to join us for an enriching experience that promises not only to inspire but also to elevate scientific discourse in ion channel research.
